

Presentation reflection

I decided to choose gay parenting and adoption because I think raising children in a safe environment with a lot of understanding is extremely important. Most parents don't think about things like, what if my child was gay or they are a gender non-conformist, what if they have a mental health issue, do we have the financing, etc. They simply have children and often deal with negative things that come up with disappointment, shock and misunderstanding. I feel like gay parents have more potential because they have to do more planning. You can never plan for everything but in planning more possibilities are open to you. If you prepare for the worst and expect the realistic life is a wonderful place, disappointments don't sting so badly and when things happen above expectations it's a pleasant surprise. It comes down to parents simply need to be loving and understanding and I see no reason why gay parents can't be.

Start with background of issue and give the sides

Then go into specific cases discussing issues use stereotypes and info from book here

Discuss why your side has better logic and more advantages based on monetary and empirical evidence.

Briefly discuss theory reasons why your side is better

Closing statement

This is the outline of my presentation's general flow. In terms of research I wanted to find research done by unbiased organizations like those of psychiatry and pediatrics and statistics from unbiased sources such as the department of health and census data. Then I wanted to find theory and arguments from either side and decide based on those arguments and their support through research.

I don't think I had enough specific case study in my presentation and have no excuses for that. Beyond that I did my best to analyze the sides and their support, I may have shown quite a bit of bias but I have to follow the best science and logic. I gave a little ties to what we did in the class but there wasn't much about parenting in our class mostly just individual rights. I tried to engage the audience but some of it might get a bit boring or tedious but I tried to give really good support and establishment of credibility.
